

FIRE RATED ACCESS PANELS

Maintaining Fire Resistance at Service Access Points

Access panels are essential for maintenance of concealed building services. Without the correct fire rating however, they represent a potential weak point in your compartmentation. OCD FM supplies and installs Fire Rated Access Panels for commercial, industrial and educational settings, ensuring access points do not compromise fire resistance.

What We Do

Our engineers supply and install fire-rated access panels in walls and ceilings, maintaining the fire resistance of the surrounding structure whilst providing essential service access.

We offer panels with fire ratings of up to two hours, suitable for ductwork, electrical distribution, plumbing and HVAC systems across a wide range of applications.

Each panel is selected and installed in line with the building's compartmentation requirements and relevant fire safety standards, ensuring corridors and escape routes remain protected.

All installations are fully documented with certification provided on completion.
