

LIMESTONE

Limestone is a sedimentary rock formed from compressed plant and animal remains at the bottom of lakes and seas.

Limestone is a popular stone choice but the hardness and density can vary widely so it is sensible to take expert advice on which Limestones are suitable in different situations.

While many Limestones are beige or cream, they can range from almost white through to black and are available in honed, antiqued or highly polished finishes.